

Day 2: What do you remember?

Last Week...

Can you tally how many pairs of socks are in your drawer?

Yesterday...

Can you tell an adult
what heavier means?

Important words to use:
Can you say them in a silly voice?

compare

LO: To compare weight

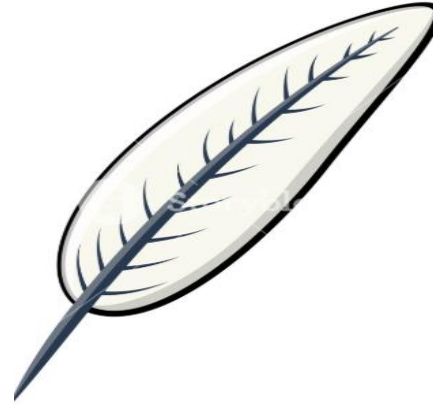

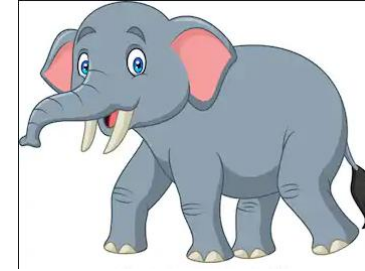

- I can compare the weight of two objects
- I can say which is heavier and which is lighter

Look at these pictures and decide if it is likely to be heavy or light.

Remember that heavy means something with lots of weight, hard to lift or move!

The elephant would be harder to lift than the feather so it must be heavier.

The plastic bag would be easier to lift than a car so it must be lighter.

Look around your house and see how many different objects you can find of similar weights. Using your hands, pick two, compare the objects and estimate which you think is heavier and which is lighter.

Only use your hands. Do not use any scales at this point!

Put a line down the middle of your whiteboard, write heavier on one side and lighter on the other side. Pick one item that you will test your other items against (a plate might be a good idea). Write or draw the items under the appropriate heading based on your estimation. Don't forget to use the language 'I estimate that x is heavier/lighter than x.'

Heavier	Lighter

Challenge

Can you predict which of ALL your items will be the heaviest and which will be the lightest?
